  - a. Presentation: Native Nations Signage on Bascom Hill – Daniel Einstein, Historic and Cultural Resources Manager.

Daniel Einstein introduced Omar Poler, Interim American Indian Coordinator and Aaron Bird Bear, American Indian Curriculum Services to aid in the presentation of Native Nations Signage on Bascom Hill. Working over the last year, the Committee on Native American Campus Signage has sought to create a learning tool for campus; strengthening the relationship the University of Wisconsin-Madison has with the Twelve First Nations Wisconsin. The Committee on Native American Campus Signage was charged by Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, Sarah C. Mangelsdorf to:

“This Committee is charged to review the needs and opportunities, in consultation with sovereign native nations of Wisconsin, including and especially the Ho-Chunk Nation. Signage will be developed to advance multiple needs, including the needs of Wisconsin’s sovereign Native Nations to have their presence and heritage recognized and honored, K-12 education needs and the needs of the UW-Madison community to learn about the native heritage and the landscape, and the needs of native students, faculty and staff to experience an inclusive and respectful learning environment”

– Sarah C. Mangelsdorf, Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs March 21, 2017.

The Committee explored UW-Madison's deep history which is rich in archeological sites of the First Nations of Wisconsin. Specifically acknowledging early settlers forced removals of the Ho-Chunk peoples, which split the Nation into two. Survivors today from that group have resisted removal. The text on the bronze plaque is proposed to read:

"Bascom Hill Historic District

Our Shared Future

The University of Wisconsin-Madison occupies ancestral Ho-Chunk land, a place their nation has called Teejop (day-JOPE) since time immemorial. In an 1832 treaty, the Ho-Chuck were forced to cede this territory. Decades of ethnic cleansing followed when both the federal and state government repeatedly, but unsuccessfully, sought to forcibly remove Ho-Chuck from Wisconsin. This history of colonization informs our shared future of collaboration and innovation. Today, UW-Madison respects the inherent sovereignty of the Ho-Chunk Nation, along with the eleven other First Nations of Wisconsin.

This signage will be part of a family of bronze signage first added in 1998. Campus Planning & Landscape Architecture lists the location of all the Bronze signage on campus.

Provost Sarah Mangelsdorf thanked the committee of Native American Campus Signage for their hard work.

Kate Vandenbosch Moved to approve the location and text of the bronze plaque.
